

MASTER OF ARTS IN Modern and Contemporary Art History

saic.edu/maah

Students in SAIC's Art History program pursue research in a prestigious art school connected with a major museum. They work with a large department of full-time faculty specializing in modern and contemporary art and design with a global focus, and challenge, debate and interpret the field.

Wide Ranging Scholarship

The Master of Arts in Modern and Contemporary Art History (MAAH) is a two-year, 36-credit master's program grounded in the study of modern and contemporary art, design and theory in its global and transnational contexts. Students study a wide range of artists and designers and art and design practices, with research culminating in a master's thesis written under the supervision of a full-time faculty member.

Faculty

Full-time faculty are scholars with global reputations whose research is on the cutting edge of present trends in the field with specialties covering Africa, Latin America, Southeast Asia, East Asia, Europe and North America. Their teaching engages with interdisciplinary perspectives such as media studies, performance studies, material culture studies, design studies, visual studies, philosophy and gender studies.

Careers

MAAH students enjoy successful careers after graduation, going on to influential positions in museums, art galleries, alternative venues, publishing and academia.

Resources

In addition to Chicago's vibrant cultural and artistic environment that includes major cultural institutions, numerous artist-run galleries and community-based organizations, students have access to the Art Institute of Chicago and its research collections, SAIC's Flaxman Library, Video Data Bank, Fashion Resource Center, Roger Brown Study Collection, the Gene Siskel Film Center and numerous visiting artists, designers, historians and critics.
