

SMITH-BUONANNO FAMILY DIRECTOR OF CONTEMPORARY PRACTICES

The School of the Art Institute of Chicago invites applications for the Smith-Buonanno Family Director of Contemporary Practices, to begin in August of 2022. This endowed professorship is a tenured, leadership position, overseeing the first-year program at SAIC. Rank and salary are competitive with peer institutions and are commensurate with level of practice, scholarship, current academic research, extent of teaching experience, and current professional standing. The Smith-Buonanno Family Director of Contemporary Practices will teach one course in the department per academic year and will receive annual research funding while serving in this role.

DEPARTMENT PROFILE

SAIC's first-year program, the Department of Contemporary Practices (CP), provides an intensive introduction to interdisciplinary contemporary art and design practices, including required curriculum for first-year and transfer students. Pedagogically, the Department of Contemporary Practices is committed to integrating critical thinking skills, cultural competency, anti-racism, and social engagement towards a decolonized, studio-based curriculum across myriad media and processes. Courses move between studio practices, investigating and applying formal languages, skill building, collaborative learning, various forms of critique, and activities to foster community.

Evolving out of a traditional foundations program, the Department of Contemporary Practices is continually evaluating and assessing what a first-year required curriculum in the arts might be, rigorously exploring the changing nature of what it means to be "contemporary" for new generations of artists and designers.

In the summer of 2020, the Department of Contemporary Practices made the decision to prioritize anti-racism in its conversations about diversity. The faculty, staff, and students in the Contemporary Practices Department are deeply committed to consistent and ongoing anti-racist work and creating a culture of learning and engagement with one another.

The Department of Contemporary Practices provides courses for over 850 students. Seventy-five faculty teach in the department, eleven of whom are tenured or tenure-track faculty. Further information about the department can be found at the following URL:

RESPONSIBILITIES

The Smith-Buonanno Family Director of Contemporary Practices is a leadership position at SAIC and is responsible for working with the faculty in developing the curricular and programmatic initiatives of the Department. The Director is expected to demonstrate a commitment to the mission of the Department of Contemporary Practices: to maintain the "contemporary" in Contemporary Practices, while also underscoring the importance of fundamental skills, interdisciplinary practices, and critical thinking that are part of SAIC's curriculum. The primary responsibility of the Director is to work with the faculty to develop and maintain innovative courses and to select faculty to teach those courses. Other duties include facilities planning and oversight, budget and resource allocation, as well as evaluating curriculum and faculty performance. The Director works in partnership with the Undergraduate Division, Student Affairs, and the chairs of twenty-four studio and academic departments. In addition, the Director is an outward facing member of the SAIC community who connects with the School at large, potential students, and the city of Chicago.

A selection of primary responsibilities of the Director include:

- Providing leadership in implementing a long-term vision for the Contemporary Practices curriculum, upholding the departmental commitment of innovating and integrating an anti-racist and decolonized curriculum into a studio-based curriculum.
- Providing advocacy for Contemporary Practices students, faculty, and departmental needs.
- Liaising with institutional, departmental, and program leaders throughout SAIC to ensure alignment of the Contemporary Practices curriculum with evolving departmental and institutional needs.
- Directing and mentoring full-time faculty in their departmental service responsibilities, including the Departmental Faculty Coordinator, who supports and oversees part-time faculty development, and the Departmental Curriculum Coordinator, who supervises and facilitates departmental curricular development and assessment.
- The Director works departmentally with the CP assessment committee to envision and implement meaningful and creative assessment models to support effective teaching of the CP learning goals and course learning outcomes, while also engaging with broader school-wide accreditation cycles
- In consultation with the Faculty Coordinator and Administrative Director, scheduling faculty for all Contemporary Practices classes.

- Participation in managing the administrative staff. Collaborate with the Senior Administrative Director to develop departmental procedures and logistics.
- Working with the Senior Administrative Director to establish and monitor the operating and capital asset budgets Working with the Office of Advancement to secure student scholarships and funding for additional Contemporary Practices initiatives.
- The Director is a standing member of the following institutional committees: Undergraduate Recruitment Committee; Department Heads; Undergraduate Cabinet; First Year Forum. The Director facilitates communication between these committees and the Contemporary Practices departmental faculty.
- Active participation in School governance.
- In addition to the above, the position of the Director involves numerous other responsibilities that range from ongoing administrative needs to departmental program review and assessment.

QUALIFICATIONS

MFA, terminal degree in an adjacent field, or equivalent professional experience is required. Candidates should have a minimum of five years of full-time experience teaching foundation studio or equivalent first-year students; an ongoing history of recognized accomplishment in their field; and a demonstrated ability to work effectively with both faculty and staff as a manager and a mentor. Candidates should demonstrate their experience with, or aptitude for, departmental administration. Additionally, candidates should be prepared to demonstrate how they will contribute in meaningful ways to the department and SAIC's shared commitment to anti-racism, cultural diversity, pluralism, and individual differences. The candidate for Director should have commensurate qualifications that would lead to a tenured appointment as an associate or full professor.

The ideal candidate will contribute to the diversity of the School by bringing a perspective, way of thinking, and/or a unique set of experiences that expand the intellectual conversations and art/design practices within the fields of art and design.
