

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS

We recognize that the cost of a U.S. education can be very expensive. The best source for financial assistance for international students is often in their home country. Since the U.S. government does not provide funding for foreign nationals to study in the U.S., students should make every effort to identify potential funding sources (national, provincial or private) before coming to the U.S. Most grants, scholarships, and loans from public and private sources in the United States are restricted to U.S. citizens or permanent residents, limiting the amount of information international students can find about financial aid from U.S. sources. Scholarships may be an option, and we suggest using the Internet as a means to research them.

Listed below are scholarship and loan opportunities identified by International Affairs. Several of the scholarship searches are nationally recognized and highly recommended by colleges across the U.S. Some websites require students to complete a profile in order to determine for which scholarships and fellowships they may be eligible, and will then email customized listings and deadline information to students.

Students interested in applying for loans should first consider borrowing from a bank in their home country. Those planning to apply for loans from the United States will find most loan agencies require a cosigner who is a U.S. citizen or a permanent resident. Loan applications should be submitted to SAIC Student Financial Services with any and all necessary support documentation including a copy of the passport and immigration documents.
